Partner Qualification Scorecard

For commercial and partnerships leaders deciding which prospective partners are worth pursuing before any agreement is drafted.

> How to use this: Score each prospective partner against the four factors below, weighted for their partner type, before moving to commercial or legal discussion.

Partner Snapshot

Partner name and type (referral / reseller / implementation / technology):

Who initiated this conversation, and why now?

What does the partner say they want out of this relationship?

Four-Factor Scoring

Score each factor 1-5 (1 = weak evidence, 5 = strong, specific evidence) based on the partner's actual answers, not general impressions.

Factor	Score (1-5)	Specific Evidence Given
Audience overlap
Existing motion (track record introducing vendors)
Economic alignment (incentive size vs. their priorities)
Delivery capacity (named people, real hours)

Qualification Questions Asked

- [ ] Asked for named accounts or contacts they believe are a genuine fit today
- [ ] Asked what happened the last time they introduced a new vendor to their base
- [ ] Asked who specifically would do the work, by name and role
- [ ] Asked what success would need to look like in the first two quarters for them to stay engaged
- [ ] Cross-checked their claims against any public information (customer base, case studies, team size)

Red Flags Observed

Where were the answers vague, generic, or deflected to 'we'll figure it out'?

Is there any mismatch between the partner's stated enthusiasm and their concrete capacity?

Decision

Total weighted score and go / no-go / revisit-later decision:

If proceeding, what is the smallest first test we'll run before a full agreement?

If declining, what specifically would need to change for us to revisit this partner?
